The Sun And The Wind

There was once an argument between the sun and the wind about who was stronger than the other. They argued for the long time but neither of them emerged the winner. Everyday they would argue till sun set. One day while they were sitting quietly, there appeared the man walking very fast wearing the coat. The idea stuck them both.

They looked at each other and said, 'it is our time to test our argument and see who is stronger and the winner. The wind started the challenge. It began to blow hard. It blew, blew, and blew harder making the man harder to walk. The wind pushed the man backwards but the man struggled forward. He tightened and wrapped his coat around him and continued to walk fast. The wind became tired since it had applied all his effort and finally gave up.

It was now the turn of the sun. He jumped down. He started to smile. The sun began to shine gently upon the path of the man. The man looked up and said to himself, ' oh my God the weather has changed. It's now becoming hot'. The sun continued to shine gently over the man's head. It became hot and the man started sweating. He headed to a nearby tree. He put off his coat. The sun was the winner.
